

Institute of Advanced Study
2020/21 Fellowships

The Institute of Advanced Study is one of Durham University's flagship interdisciplinary research institutes, providing a central forum for debate and collaboration across the entire disciplinary spectrum. It seeks to catalyse new ideas by bringing together world-leading researchers from all disciplines to work with Durham scholars on collaborative projects of major intellectual, scientific, political and practical significance. Through dialogue and collaboration across disciplinary boundaries, its aim is to foster creative and collaborative interdisciplinary research which sparks new investigations, set tomorrow's agenda and leaves a legacy of embedded research projects in Durham.

Applications are now invited for Fellowships (October-December 2020 and January-March 2021). Applicants may be from any academic discipline or professional background involving research, and they may come from anywhere in the world. IAS Fellowships include an honorarium, and funds for travel, accommodation, and costs associated with replacement teaching or loss of salary (where appropriate).

Further particulars are available from the IAS website at www.dur.ac.uk/ias/fellows/furtherparticulars/. A minimum PhD (completed and awarded) is required at the time of application, and Fellowships are not open to under- or postgraduate students.
