

---

Dr. Anna-Marie Pípalová

---

<https://orcid.org/0000-0003-0907-5730>

Education

2025 PhD in History, University of Cambridge

2020 MPhil in Early Modern History, University of Cambridge

2018 BA Hons in History, University of Cambridge

Fellowships

ongoing Fond Junior Postdoctoral Researcher, Charles University

2023 Doctoral Fellow, Leibniz-Institut für Europäische Geschichte (6 months)

Research

Anna-Marie Pípalová is a historian of early modern Central Europe. Her interests include the history of scholarship, early modern historiography, identity formation, the memory of the Thirty Years' War, and the interplay of gender and violence.

Her current research project examines how the violence of the Thirty Years' War was memorialised in the seventeenth century and the role of gender in the memory of wartime violence. Her work has been supported by the AHRC, the Cambridge Trust, and the Leibniz-Institut für Europäische Geschichte.

Publications

'Mary on the Move: Transcultural Marian Veneration in Seventeenth-Century Central-Eastern Europe', chapter in Early Modern East Central Europe from Transcultural Perspectives, ed. V. Čapská (forthcoming);

'Bohuslav Balbín and the Patriotic Reconceptualisation of Bohemia, c.1650-1675', journal article, The Historical Journal 65:4 (2022), 992-1014.