
Czech Language Courses

At the Faculty of Humanities, we offer single semester Czech language courses to both exchange students and degree students of the Faculty of Humanities enrolled in a foreign language study programme.

- Czech Language Course for Beginners (course code: YBJ092)

Number of ECTS credits: 4 ECTS

Course Description:

The course targets students that are staying in the Czech Republic for a limited period of time and need to cover the basics of the language in order to communicate in everyday situations. The ultimate aim is to provide the students with basic skills, grammar and vocabulary to deal with life in the Czech Republic, and to give them an idea of the Czech language system as well as Czech culture. The instruction uses a communicational method of teaching: the material is based on situations the students may face, rather than a grammatical overview of the language. There is also emphasis on both receptive and productive language skills (reading listening, speaking and writing). This however does not mean that we would neglect, ignore nor reject grammar! Grammar is used functionally, as a tool to reach communicational competencies but not the core purpose of the learning process.
