Call for applications: 2018 ethnomusicology summer schools at the Faculty of Humanities, Charles University, Prague

Faculty of Humanities, at Charles University, Prague, is announcing two ethnomusicology summer schools for local and international students:

- Romani music (May 28 to June 2, 2018; prof. Zuzana Jurková, with Petr Dorůžka, and Jan Dužda see details here)
- Music and youth cultures: theory and ethnography of music “community” (June 4–12, 2018; prof. Luis-Manuel Garcia, prof. David Verbuč; see details here)

General information for both summer schools. The courses will be held in English. All costs (transport, accommodation, meals) are covered by students themselves. The organizer will arrange accommodation at Charles University dorms upon request. Participation fee for international students is 50 euros (free for Charles University and Erasmus students). Students will have a possibility to obtain 3-4 ECTS credits for their participation (depending on the course—see below). Students can apply for one, or both ethnomusicology summer courses.

Application. Students who wish to participate in a particular summer school must submit the following forms by March 15, 2018:

a) application form (find on this page)
b) CV (curriculum vitae)
c) proof of current university enrolment
(all in English)

Charles University students, and Erasmus students do not have to send an application—only register on SIS by March 4, 2018

Signed application form, and other documents, should be submitted to the following email addresses: zuzana.jurkova@post.cz (for “Romani music” summer school), and david.verbuc@fhs.cuni.cz (for “Music and youth cultures: theory and ethnography of music “community”” summer school). Applicants will be notified about their acceptance within two weeks after the deadline.

For more information please contact Zuzana Jurková (zuzana.jurkova@post.cz), and David Verbuč (david.verbuc@fhs.cuni.cz).
