Historical Sociology

Historical Sociology cannot be understood as some hybrid connection of history and sociology. It is a field based on an assumption that a general object of sociology is historical, time and space determined social reality. In accordance with that premise Historical Sociology could be defined as a specific theoretic and methodological perspective focused on long-term social processes, as well as on analysis of differences and similarities between different historical epochs. It is an interdisciplinary science, which cooperates primarily with the fields of history, anthropology, politology, and economy. The aim of Historical Sociological research is the study of long-term social processes and trends that have a significant impact on contemporary societies and phenomena. The Master's programme in Historical Sociology cultivates research activities and the education of experts with an emphasis on the specialization in these processes.

Above all, historical sociology deals with problems of modernisation and social change, globalisation trends and influences, integration and disintegration processes, the relationship of continuity and discontinuity, religious and cultural pluralism, linking the global to the local, the identification of the chances and risks of social development, the analysis of conflict situations and the possibility of overcoming them.

The need for understanding of all of these issues invokes the need for the development of adequate theoretical and methodological approaches, and also of the specific training of university students, which is possible through the study of Historical Sociology at our Faculty.

If you graduated outside the Czech Republic, then you must submit an officially recognised/nostrified document validating your foreign education. More information on the process of recognition and nostrification can be found here .

An admission exam is not required.

Please note: The recognition/nostrification process can take a long time (1-3 months) and its successful completion is a necessary component of the formal admission into the programme. You will receive an official acceptance letter from the university only after your foreign degree diploma has been recognised/nostrified in the Czech Republic. Please, be aware that the process of recognition/nostrification takes some time - up to 1 month for recognition and up to 3 months for nostrification. When planning your enrolment and studies, keep in mind that you should submit all the relevant documents sufficiently in advance.

Deadline for applicants to submit their previous education certificate is September 30, 2022. Applicants who are unable to get their foreign diploma recognised/nostrified until the end of September are allowed to submit a copy of their BA diploma no later than October 22, 2022. This is the extended and final deadline for enrolment in the academic year 2022/2023. Please, keep in mind that the academic year already starts in the beginning of October.

If you need to apply for a student visa in order to study in Prague, please, make effort to complete all of the required steps of the admission process on time.

Profile of a Graduate

Throughout their study of the Master's programme in Historical Sociology, graduates will have covered both theoretical topics as well as practical and research-based topics.

Regarding theory, graduates will have acquired historical-sociological knowledge from the social, cultural, religious, political, and economic spheres. Practical and research-based skills acquired throughout the study of this course include professional skills based on managing the basic approaches of quantitative and qualitative historical-sociological research methodology.

This combination of both theoretical and practical fields qualifies graduates for employment both in the academic sphere, i.e., at universities and research institutions, and in the non-academic sphere, i.e. in state administration, NGO's, agencies, consultancy firms, educational institutions, cultural organisations, or the media.

Study Plan

Mandatory courses and amount of credits are available via the link provided.

The programme is taught in three general blocs which are made up of relevant courses taught by the department: Theoretical-Historical Bloc, where you gain knowledge of various theories and historical background of Historical Sociology; Methodological-Research Bloc, where you are taught the ins and outs of solid research together with relevant theories and methodologies; and Optional Thematic Bloc, where you are free to choose one from three optional areas depending on your interests and specialization. These areas are:

- 1. Theory of social change and modernization processes (Jiří Šubrt)
- 2. Historical sociology of culture and quotidian life (Bohuslav Šalanda)
- 3. The historical sociology of politics and international relations (Nicolas Maslowski)

You can find more information on the course structure and details regarding its organization on the webpages of the Historical Sociology department.
